

Here's How Marines Hunted Down Last Jap on Makin Island

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Aug. 28.—(P)—A force of 350 Japs—virtually every defender—was wiped out and all sea-plane installations methodically wrecked by U. S. Marines during the recent Makin Island raid, now disclosed by eyewitnesses to have been a two-day job of slaughter and destruction.

Contrasting with earlier reports of a hit-and-run raid, the participants, including Major James Roosevelt, son of the President, made it clear that the scrappy Marines even hunted for the few Jap stragglers still alive before withdrawing to ships.

And so stealthy was the landing during a moonless night on the northernmost island of the Jap-held Gilbert group 1,500 miles northeast of the Solomons, that the Marines had been ashore for 20 minutes, deployed for battle, before the Japs discovered them.

"The morning of the second day, only eight Japanese were left on the island," related Lieut. Col Evans F. Carlson of Plymouth, Conn., commander of the Marines.

"We wiped out all we could find and, after a checkup with the natives, found only two Japanese unaccounted for. I cannot disclose our casualties but will say the Japanese losses on land alone were more than 10 to 1 our losses, not counting the 150 Japs lost at sea or in planes."

Other dramatic episodes gleaned from the eyewitness accounts:

Jap snipers, strapped to coconut trees, fired at Major Roosevelt but missed. "I fired two shots at snipers," was all the eldest son of the President would say concerning his personal activity.

Photographs taken after the raid, however, showed Major Roosevelt with a bandage around the end of his right middle finger. There was no explanation of how he received the injury. He was wearing a broad grin at the time and otherwise showed no ill effects.

Other pictures showed a lot of satisfied smiles on the faces of the Marines after they returned from the scrap. Col. Carlson looked unusually happy.

The island's 1,700 natives gladly worked with the invaders and their king gave his sarong to Capt. James Davis of Evanston, Ill., who lost his pants in action. Captain Davis donned it.

Sergeant Jim Faulkner, of Red Oak, Tex., caught four Japanese bullets, muttered "dammit" each time, then carried on until led reluctantly away to an operating table. And there he bellowed at surgeons that he was being pampered.

Private John Hawkins of Southgate, Calif., killed three Japs before he was wounded so seriously that he was rushed aboard ship, virtually given up for dead. The next morning a stunned

NAZIS STORM STALINGRAD BUT REDS HOLD

Meandering Along the Main Stem

Not to wax sentimental, but some day—when old age shoves me away from my desk—I'll gather my grandchildren around me and tell them about the fun I used to have interviewing famous people who chanced to visit Washington C. H.

I'll tell them about baseball's czar, Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, whose pictures belied his actual disposition. He paused, his fork halted in mid-air, when I busts in on him while he and his wife were lunching at the Cherry Hotel one day 'way back.

"How'd you know who I was," he growled as I addressed him as Mr. Landis. But that growl was the only one he gave me during the interview for once on his favorite subject—baseball, of course—he was every bit a grand old gent.

Then there was Clara Bow, the "It" girl of the movies back before the days of "oomph." She and her husband stopped in Washington C. H., and although at the time she had bid the motion picture business goodbye, she was still as pretty as a spotted pup, if you'll pardon the expression, and much more pleasant.

Another famous figure, this one known to music lovers all over the United States, gripped his cigar tightly in the corner of his mouth, looked up and said: "Yowsah, yowsah." For that greeting was, and still is, I suppose, Ben Bernie's stock in trade. The "ole maestro" and all the lads—who had been interviewed by top reporters on New York papers—gave the small town cub every consideration—and again another interview was a success.

Then there was Regis Toomey, the movie actor of the silent days, talking about his plans for a comeback. That was several years ago... and now I see him regularly in the pictures.

To add the appropriate military touch, I could tell about the talk with General John Pershing, who visited here shortly after the first World War.

There were countless others I could tell about. Big time politicians from all over the state and nation; radio and stage entertainers; Army and Navy officials—all too numerous to mention.

And each, in himself, another story.

The need of an airplane landing field in or near Washington C. H. is being stressed frequently by forward-looking citizens of this community.

Within the next few years when the commercial freight and big passenger planes will be doing an ever increasing business, any city without a landing field will be under a serious business handicap.

Alfred Jackson, head of the Aeronautical Products Company here, is one who makes most of his trips from Detroit in his own private cabin plane. When his destination is this city, he has been compelled to arrange a landing in Springfield and drive the rest of the trip here by motor car.

Mr. Jackson declared on one of his first trips here that the future of the city may well be measured in coming years by public interest and activity toward a municipal landing field. Other business visitors here have indicated the same thing.

Allies Intensify Aerial Assault on Germany

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(P)—In twin raids on the key plane-producing center of Kassel and the Baltic port of Gdynia in former Poland, the RAF spread the massed might of its bombers last night from end to end of Germany, the British announced today.

To carry the great onslaught to smash the Nazi war machine across the breadth of Germany to Gdynia, the British had to fly more than 1,500 miles round-trip from their home bases under a moonlit sky.

This was another long step forward in the avowed British policy to help Soviet Russia—a smash at the Baltic Harbor where the 26,000-ton German battleship Gneisenau was known to have been recently and at an important base for U-boat operations against the Red Navy's Baltic fleet.

Besides 30 bombers lost in what was called a "concentrated and effective" bombardment of Kassel, the Air Ministry announced that two fighter planes were downed in night sweeps over enemy-occupied France in which Hurricane fighter-bombers left two ships burning in the Channel.

The flights were part of a steady possession by airmen of the United Nations to squeeze the enemy homeland in an ever tightening grip of fire and explosives.

Keeping up the attack on a day and night basis, fighter planes roared across the Channel throughout the morning, and in the afternoon a powerful force of bombers escorted by fighters swept eastward toward France.

By striking at Kassel with a force probably some 600 planes strong, Britain's big night raiders hit a source of Messerschmitt fighters and the site of the Nazis' biggest locomotive foundry.

(Kassel may have been chosen by the RAF as a particularly vulnerable spot in the German war machine. Hitler blamed part of the Germans' Russian winter disaster on frozen locomotives and promised that this winter there would be no such failure.

(The vast job of keeping German armies supplied from the Atlantic to the Volga and from the Arctic to the Mediterranean under the pounding of the British and Russians and the destruction by saboteurs has put a telling strain on Nazi rail transport.

(The German high command acknowledged "material damage in residential quarters" and some civilian casualties in the Kassel attack.)

The loss of 30 bombers indicated that some 600 of the RAF's big planes made the raid. British losses on night raids have been roughly five percent.

The raid was the heaviest of nine on Kassel since the start of the war and its costliest to the attackers, British sources said.

Kassel is 90 miles northeast of Frankfurt.

While the big bombers were striking at this root of Nazi airpower, fighters were maintaining almost ceaseless offensive patrol over Nazi-occupied France and there were indications of possible naval encounters in the English Channel and the Kattegat.

Watchers on the British southeast coast reported the heavy roll of gunfire from out in the mists of the strait suggesting to some a sea battle in the region of the entrance to the North Sea.

Similar cannonading was heard at Varberg, on the west coast of Sweden. Swedish reports said it appeared to come from warships embattled somewhere in the narrow waters of the Kattegat through which German vessels would have to pass between the North Sea and their home bases.

German bombers, meanwhile, followed up light night attacks on northern England with a series of daylight attacks on widely separated areas. Two enemy planes bombed Bristol during the

Hitler's Drive for Oil in Caucasus Rolls On but At Slower Pace

By ROGER D. GREENE (By the Associated Press)

An armada of British warplanes perhaps 600 strong pounded the German rail-aircraft center of Kassel in a "concentrated and effective" assault before dawn today, while on the Russian front, the Red armies stemmed the Nazi drive against Stalingrad with a tempest of defense fire.

In their 16-day-old counter-offensive on the central front, the Russians reported they had captured a heavily fortified point which may have been Rzhev, key German base 130 miles northwest of Moscow, and crushed attacks by Nazi reserves.

A Vichy radio broadcast asserted that Gen. Fedor von Bock's armies had reached the last belt of fortifications guarding Stalingrad, only 13 miles from the great Volga industrial city, but the report lacked confirmation from any other source.

Soviet troops fell back deeper into the towering mountains of the central Caucasus, but there were indications that the situation was no worse before Stalingrad and was better before Moscow.

At mid-day, a bulletin from Red army headquarters announced that Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov's central armies "fought the enemy in the outskirts of Rzhev," the highly important Nazi base on the north flank of the old Napoleonic corridor from Moscow to Smolensk.

Then, without identifying the Battle in Jungles Develops After Nip Force Landed at Milne Bay—U. S. Sea and Air Forces Smash Jap Attack on Solomons and Chase Remnants of Enemy Fleet Off Into Pacific After Inflicting Severe Losses

By JOHN WIGGINS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(P)—A raging battle to break a Japanese grip in southeastern New Guinea developed swiftly in crocodile-infested swamplands today as American naval and air forces emerged apparently victorious in the second round of the Solomon Islands conflict.

Disappearance of a battered enemy fleet from the U. S.-controlled Tulagi area of the Solomons temporarily narrowed the struggle in the southwest Pacific to two Japanese footholds on New Guinea.

Enemy forces which landed two days ago at Milne Bay, some 225 miles from the strong Allied New Guinea base at Port Moresby and 420 miles from the Australian mainland, were pounded by an Allied land-air attack that destroyed Japanese planes, troops, supplies and fuel dumps.

General MacArthur's Australian headquarters reported that Allied airmen shot down 12 or 14 enemy planes during the day in fights over Milne Bay and the Japanese base at Buna, 180 miles up the northeastern coast of New Guinea. Earlier Japanese losses at the swampy Milne Bay landing included a transport, probably a carrier and six landing barges.

Meanwhile, a terse Navy Department communique reported that "Japanese surface forces appear to have withdrawn from the vicinity of our positions in the Tulagi area."

While modern naval warfare might result in turning a withdrawal into another large scale

BLACK MARKETS FOR MEAT FOUND

Confusion Over Ceilings on Wholesale Prices Blamed For Violations

By WILLIAM FERRIS

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(P)—The confusion over wholesale meat prices, because of price ceilings governing innumerable grades, has resulted in frequent penetration of ceiling levels and in effect "black selling" trade sources said today.

Sources in the Department of Agriculture, the meat packing industry and the retail buying field, none of whom would permit use of their names, agreed price ceilings are being exceeded in a variety of ways, either intentionally or unintentionally.

Observers said that, for one thing, ceilings are based on the price schedules of each packer and, as a result, one packer may

Meatless Days Likely; That's Presidential Tip

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(P)—President Roosevelt, visualizing the possibility of the imposition of a meatless day each week on the American people, declared today that this would permit the freeing of 30 or 40 cargo ships now used to transport meat.

He told his press conference he did not know when the people might be asked to give up meat one day a week, inasmuch as the full effect on the difficult problem of transportation still was under study.

But he said that 30 or 40 vessels now bringing meat from New Zealand, Australia and Argentina could be devoted to transportation of tanks, planes and munitions if a meatless day were instituted.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that the meat and related shipping problems had figured in conversations he has been holding with Peter Fraser, New Zealand prime minister, although he said that they actually had been talking over literally everything.

If a meatless day were put into effect, the President said, it would release large quantities of meat for movement across the Atlantic while not as much would have to

Army's Call For Students In Prospect

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(P)—Lieutenant General Brehon B. Somervell told American educators today that shortages of trained men for the army were serious, that the situation was rapidly getting worse, and that the nation's schools and colleges had to remedy the situation even at the cost of scrapping peace time course.

Somervell and Fowler Harper, deputy chairman of the Manpower Commission, told the educators that every able bodied young man should feel that he is "destined for the armed services."

No student, Harper said, was exempted from the call to arms merely because of his status as a student.

"Our army today is an army of specialists," he said. "Out of ever 100 men inducted into the service, 63 are assigned to duties requiring specialized training. We aren't getting those 63 specialists throughout the induction centers. But modern mechanized warfare dictates that we must have them."

Gen. Gregory Zhukov

He was appointed first deputy to Stalin in that department today and, as such, will out-rank all other Soviet generals.

The appointment was announced by the council of the people's commissars without amplification. Observers expressed belief that he would serve as an executive assistant to Stalin in military matters.

A former chief of the general staff, he is credited with turning the Germans from Moscow last fall and he played a significant role in the Soviet winter offensive.

GASOLINE RATIONING NOT NEEDED IN OHIO TO HELP OUT EAST

COLUMBUS, Aug. 28.—(P)—Gasoline rationing in Ohio would give little or no relief to the shortage on the Eastern Seaboard, Governor John W. Bricker was advised today by the committee he appointed to study the petroleum situation in this state.

"Contrary to the opinion held in some quarters, the rationing of gasoline in this area would make little or no contribution to the Eastern Seaboard as we will indicate later," the committee stated.

Ohio rationing would make only 4,000 more barrels of furnace oil available daily for the East, the report said. This would require only 19 tank cars.

LAST OF PASSENGERS ON GRIPSHOLM CLEARED

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(P)—The last of the passengers remaining aboard the diplomatic exchange liner Gripsholm were cleared at 10:45 o'clock last night concluding three days of intensive questioning of more than 1,400 persons who returned from the Orient.

Byron H. Uhl, district director of immigration, said that a total of 12 persons were taken from the Gripsholm for further questioning at Ellis Island.

USED BIKES CEILINGED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(P)—The Office of Price Administration advised dealers selling used bicycles today that their prices must not exceed the highest levels charged in March for similar bicycles.

RENT CONTROL PROGRAM UPHOLD BY KANSAS COURT

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 28.—(P)—A three-judge federal court ruled today that Wichita landlords for the time being must abide by terms of the government's rent control program but took under advisement a suit contesting its constitutionality.

The court granted the office of price administration a preliminary injunction restraining Temperance Kimmel, Wichita apartment operator, from evicting tenants or collecting more rent than she received July 1, 1941, when rents in this area were frozen.

Plan To Draft Single Men First Outlined By in Board's New Plan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(P)—Selective service officials have recommended a temporary pooling arrangement among local boards in each state to assure that available single men will be drafted before married men.

State directors have been advised to vary their military induction quotas in accord with the number of single men the respective local boards have classified.

An official explained that "in effect, this amounts to statewide pools of unmarried men."

Without such an arrangement, some boards would be obliged to call on married men to fill their quotas before other boards had exhausted their list of single men, it was said.

Most boards, however, were believed to have sufficient numbers of men in the 1-A classification—available for immediate call—to

SIMPLE RAF AMBULANCE CARRIES DUKE OF KENT TO FINAL RESTING PLACE

LONDON.—(P)—A simple RAF ambulance in drab war paint bore the body of the Duke of Kent today to Windsor—country seat and burial place of Britain's royal family. Crowds in London's busy Euston Station stood silent and bareheaded as the coffin of the Duke, draped with his personal standard and surmounted by a single wreath of red lilies, was removed from the baggage car of an express train. Aboard the same train were the bodies of three members of the Duke's entourage who died with him Tuesday in a flying boat crash in Scotland—his secretary, Lieut. John Lowther; his equerry, pilot officer the Honorable Michael Strutt, and valet, leading Aircraftman Hales.

AMERICANS FIRST

One thing about the gubernatorial election in New York state should be made clear at the outset, to all Americans and to the Axis:

At no time has the philosophy underlying President Roosevelt's war program been involved. At no time has there been the slightest question whether New York's administration should support the war wholeheartedly and efficiently.

The President has been beaten, in his capacity as a Democratic political leader, by genial Jim Farley, to whom Franklin Roosevelt owes his political position today. Farley's candidate for the Democratic nomination defeated Mr. Roosevelt's.

But the President, as war leader of the United States and as spokesman for our unwavering intention of beating Hitler, has not been defeated. He has not even been challenged. He is not going to be challenged.

It is difficult to find a good independent political analyst who concedes the Democratic nominee, Attorney General John J. Bennett, any chance of beating Thomas E. Dewey, who is unopposed for the Republican nomination. This of course includes Farley, who is not disinterested.

But Dewey is not challenging the Roosevelt total war philosophy. He is challenging Roosevelt the Democratic party leader. He is challenging Roosevelt the New Dealer. There is every reason to believe that he will challenge what he may describe as Roosevelt bungling—emphasizing errors he believes Roosevelt has made as a war administrator.

Whether observers are correct, and Dewey wins the governorship, or whether they are wrong and Bennett wins, the President's home state will be headed after next January 1 by an advocate of belligerent warfare against totalitarianism.

Let Hitler and Hirohito note that this election is our own family row. We may knock off a lot of blocks in the campaign, but we're united against the rest of the world.

MANPOWER ON THE FARM

Today's Horoscope

Are you celebrating a birthday today? You are an industrious person, dependable and fond of taking great pains to be accurate in whatever you do. You are studious and possess an analytical mind. Your judgment is sound and should lead to success in business and happiness in marriage. However, in the next year a woman friend helps you to unexpected gain, but you should guard against deception. Avoid giving offense to your employer and aged relatives; then moderate success is assured. Born on this date a child will be precise, critical, fault-finding and quick-tempered, but also courageous, ambitious, enthusiastic, alert, very clever and moderately successful.

a wheel again until eight o'clock Monday morning." We'd be licked before we started. Our men are going to the Army, as we expect them to go, and we likewise expect whatever is necessary of the manpower on the farm to go and work in defense factories. But until such time as the manpower of the city has been used to the extent of more than 40 hours a week, they have no right to draw from agriculture men and women out of the 70-hour category."

Food is as necessary to this war as bullets. We have obligated ourselves to supply other United Nations with gigantic quantities of foodstuffs which they cannot obtain elsewhere. If the farms are drained of manpower, that food supply cannot be produced. In some sections of the country, lack of manpower for farming is already forcing curtailment of operations. This is a real and imminent problem, and it must be solved.

Washington at a Glance

By Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON — So it was War Information Officer Elmer Davis who inspired President Roosevelt's order to all his subordinates, from cabinet members on down, not to talk too much, with the strong intimation that the talking they have been doing was too much and then some.

Analysis reveals, however, that it was the character rather than the quantity of the governmental functionaries' conversation that Elmer was critical of. In short, as director of War Information, INFORMATION is what he wants to have handed out—not MIS-information. And what he particularly objects to is misinformation of an undesirable nature.

Elmer wasn't required to disclose the fact, but perhaps he was needed to call attention to it, that departmental bureaucratic and agency heads' utterances have conflicted among themselves not only puzzlingly, but may be damagingly. They've given the impression that all is confusion in Washington. Confidentially, it isn't altogether a mistaken impression, either, but, even so, it isn't the kind of information that Elmer Davis believes in having broadcast. As he says, it's just the sort of propaganda that enemy agents are desperately anxious to disseminate in our midst and he isn't in favor of permitting our own folk to help 'em at it.

Enemies Are Alert

Of course, even under peace conditions, differences of opinion occasionally develop between various federal subdivisions but in normal times they're adjusted with no very serious friction, and there are no watchful propagandists alert to make the most of 'em, anyway. Now, though, offices and administrations have multiplied so rapidly and numerous and such an assortment of conflicting types of individuals have been pitchforked into posts of authority in charge that they're a perfect hodgepodge of disagreement and overlapping, to an extent that makes it impossible for them to tell themselves apart along a lot of their respective borderlines. Furthermore, their rival managements consist largely of autocratic guys, conscripted from private business and entirely undisposed to make the smallest allowances for others' ideas that clash with their own in the slightest.

When one of these boys has a press conference he's far less likely to hand out a constructive interview relative to his special groups' requirements than to pan the head of some other group, accused of interfering with him.

The necessity for straightening out these complications hasn't been overlooked by the White House. Judge Samuel Rosenman was named to hit on a compromise between Price Administrator Leon Henderson and the War Labor Board concerning anti-inflation policies. Bernard Baruch and an investigating committee had to be drafted to answer the seemingly rather simple question: "Is there a rubber shortage?"

Such quizzers are trying to solve the muddle, but, in the meantime, the disrupting bureaucrats have gone on quarreling, extremely vocally.

Elmer Davis' proposition is that news of it isn't "information." Personally I don't see why not. If all these outfits are pulling hair between themselves, I'd think it would be highly informative to the public to hear about it.

Still, I suppose it is Elmer's mission to give it a certain amount of coherency.

An Interpreter

Elmer's theory evidently is that his job's to be, not so much an informer, as an interpreter. His game is to get the information "as it is" and give it out for what it MEANS.

That's a legitimate function, though; it's an editor's.

A reporter's business is to say, "So-and-so has happened." An editor's business is to say "So-and-so is what follows—"

Elmer has been a radio news commentator. That's an editorial stunt. It's based on information, but it's information that previously has been filtered.

Far be it from me to say that Elmer Davis isn't good at it. "I knew him when." Nevertheless, he isn't a direct source of information. HE aims to be fully informed, and then to give his information out as HE sees it. I don't dispute his conclusions' approximate accuracy. Approximate? He's human.

Various Kinds of Warts and Their Treatment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IT MAY seem to you that your doctor is stretching a point when you say to him, "What shall I do for warts?" and he answers, "What do you mean, warts?" but as a matter of fact it simply shows he is a learned gentleman for there are many different kinds of warts. The scientific name for warts is "verrucae." What you usually mean when you say wart is verruca vulgaris, or the common wart. It is most common on the hands, but is seen at times in other places such as on the scalp and mucous membranes. It is the hard, dome-shaped, painless growth from the skin not associated with any inflammation around it.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The flat wart of childhood (verruca plana juvenilis) is rarely seen on adults, but is common in children on the face and backs of the hands. They come in all sizes from that of a pinhead up, are flat and soft and are sometimes seen to be a little inflamed.

Plantar Wart

The plantar wart is a very annoying variety because it occurs on the bottom of the foot, usually under the heel or big toe and hurts to beat the band. They are probably very much the same as verruca vulgaris, but standing on them mashes them down, so instead of sticking out from the surface of the skin they lie beneath it and become covered with a heavy callus. Any kind of a tender callus on the sole of the foot should suggest that a plantar wart is underneath it and when the callus is trimmed away, the wart will be revealed in its nest.

Verruca acuminata are on the moist parts of the skin. The seborrheic or senile wart occurs in elderly people on the face, head or trunk.

Probably all warts are due to infection with a filterable virus. The difference in form is not due to different viruses, but different soils. On the soft, moist skin of children it causes the flat wart, and on the dry skin of adults, the vulgar, or the plantar wart. They have a certain degree of contagiousness, especially to different parts of the same person's skin, so that crops of them are a common experience.

Treatment of Warts

The treatment of warts is not by any means always simple nor is it always advisable to undertake it at home by yourself. Of course, the best treatment of all for warts is X-ray exposure. This destroys all kinds of warts.

Plantar warts should be treated by a chiropodist as they are both inaccessible to the owner and very resistant to any form of treatment.

"When?" Pamela asked promptly. "Some night soon. I'll ring you up. My evenings are pretty full right now."

She rested her arms on the top of the door and tilted her head. "Have you got a girl, Tony?" she asked softly.

"I've got a lot of patients, little one," he said after a pause. "The glass of milk and cookies that Addie left for him were left untouched, and once he told her, 'I was up at Mrs. Wister's this evening. We had something to eat.'"

And Addie said, "I must say for her that she surprises me. She's a nice little body. Mrs. Simpson was talking about her at Red Cross meeting yesterday. She likes her real well. If that husband of hers was a queer one, I always say a woman's got to be a good wife. Addie's words were not very clear, but her nephew found no obscurity in their meaning and he felt proud, resisting the impulse to say, 'I told you so.'"

He had almost forgotten his promise to Pamela when he returned to his office late one afternoon to find her sitting in his chair before his desk.

"What can I say, dear, after I've said I'm sorry?" he hummed.

"That's what I'd be interested to know," she answered, flitting her eyes at him. "but that isn't why I came."

"Headache or heartache?" he asked solemnly.

"Neither. I'm a Greek bearing gifts. I am also a plotter looking for a co-plotter. In a word—you, my friend."

Tony's hopes hit a new high "Good girl! Begin at the beginning. But break the news gently. Your father . . ."

Pamela stared at him blankly for a moment. Then she shook her head. "Oh, you mean the hospital! No word yet. That's going rather slowly. Father's got some labor troubles, so I haven't dared mention it."

His hopes nose-dived. "It's about Mother's ice carnival. She's sent out slews of invitations—yours will be here tomorrow; she's quite captivated by you—but now she finds that the social secretary who usually does the dirty work is in California."

"Is this the plot?" he asked, trying to keep a quite natural appearance out of his voice, thinking of the hard day he'd had and the waiting patients in the outer room.

She nodded amiably. "This is the introduction to the plot. You see, Mother simply can't be bothered with the details of engaging musicians and workmen, but she's willing to pay handsomely to have it done, and she won't let me. That's where you come in."

He took his watch out of his pocket and reached for her pulse. "How do these attacks begin?" he asked professionally.

"Silly! Just calm down and let me tell you what I came for. You're an old friend of Mrs. Wister's and I want your help to approach her with the proposition."

Tony instantly put his watch back and gave her his complete, grave attention.

"She and I have got to be rather good friends and I happen to know that she's darn near starving, so if I ask her to do it, it might look as if I were offering well-bred charity. Also, there is the fact that Mother is a dreadful snob and she might . . . Well, I thought if you and I were to drop in at her place and put on a little act, you could step in and say what I can't. . . . Catch on?"

"Like a lighted match in a gas tank," he said with alacrity. "You're a nice child and I like you very much."

"I don't like the first part of that," she told him, scowling. "So what now?"

"So now you take a nice magazine and find yourself a seat in the waiting room. I'll get rid of this gang and we'll go right downtown and talk to Barbara."

It was some time after six when they drew up in front of the shop in Pamela's tan car. Ellen Cassidy was alone in the shop. Barbara was keeping it open three evenings a week in a desperate effort to swell the steadily growing, but small receipts that were the fruits of her labor. Had it not been for the weekly sum paid her by Ruth Calder, she would indeed have been near starvation. On these evenings when she kept the shop open, Ellen Cassidy had volunteered to mind it for her while she went home to give Sony his supper and put him to bed.

She came in a few minutes later and saw Tony and Pamela with their heads bent over one book. She wondered if they'd come in together, or met by accident, and was instantly recalled to the promise made to herself not to look upon Tony THAT way.

She said, "Hello, Tony. . . . Hello, Pamela. . . . Ellen take care of you? Or may I do something?"

Pamela heaved a great sigh. "I'm past all help. Even Tony's. Mother has been driving me mad all day. She's sent out invitations for an ice carnival for the 24th and now the gal who does all the arrangements isn't to be had. Did you ever hear of anything so dreadful?"

Her question was pointed at Tony, who rose to the cue, saying he never had in a hearty voice, and adding, "Just what has to be done?" An end man in a minstrel show couldn't have given Mr. Bones a more unmistakable opening.

"Not much, really, except that neither Mother or I know how to do it. An orchestra has to be got, lights strung up, food arranged for, costumes hired and prizes bought. If we can't get anyone, Mother'll have to call the whole thing off and think of all the poor people who might have had work!"

Tony nodded sagely. "There are people right here in South Wintridge who could do all that work," Barbara put in.

"But who's to tell them what and how?" Pamela wailed, and turned her big eyes to Tony. It was fun, she thought, to be a fellow conspirator with him. It was getting closer to him.

"Pshaw! That ought to be easy. Must be a lot of people—girls with executive ability and imagination—right here in South Wintridge. Let me see . . ."

Then, giving a beautiful performance of a man struck by a bolt from the blue, he turned to Barbara. "This is the girl!"

"Of course. Mother's willing to pay $100 to get it done right, and I know you could do it the way she wants it. Look what a swell job you've made of this."

A hundred dollars! So easily earned! It would be sinful, it would be wonderful. Already visions danced before her eyes of the brilliant scene that she could create.

Modern Playwrights Keep Under Cover

By JOHN FERRIS

(Wide World News Service)

NEW YORK.—For some reason playwrights of today, both the competent and the inept, and William Saroyan, too, seem to have entered into a roguish conspiracy to keep the action of their plays indoors.

It is as though some morbid fear of nature, some strange form of agoraphobia, had stricken them. A character may enter brushing artificial snow from his shoulders or shaking a wet umbrella, the wind may howl off-stage and fake snow and rain may fall beyond the windows, and lightning strike. But the visual doings of the actors are strictly under the roof.

The pages of almost any program of recent seasons reveal how infrequently authors have the courage to go outside and have their characters breathe fresh air. The dramatists cling to settings in a Harlem slum, a shack in the coal mine district of Pennsylvania, a remodeled colonial Murphy farmhouse in a Connecticut village, or 1039 P. M. in the powder room of the women's penitentiary of a western state.

These inhibitive feelings were no part of the Elizabethan character, and dramatists even closer to us—O'Neill, Shaw, Barrie and others—were not hypersensitive about fresh air. But, as a general proposition it is undeniable that most playwrights on Broadway today are timid about leaving their sheltering walls.

Thus, in the past season, theatergoers who perhaps hoped for a touch of the outdoors had to be content with a weedy canyon in "Solitaire," a shabby backyard in "The Woakey," a misbegotten English countryside in "The Seventh Trumpet," Catfish Row on the shore of Charleston, S. C., in "Porgy and Bess," or an odd little hillcock in the Forest of Arden where the actors could barely keep their footing on the fragile canvas settings in "As You Like It."

It remained though for Saroyan, whose Armenian ancestors were familiar with outdoor life and who comes from the florescent countryside of California, to polish off the dramatists' abhorrence of nature in the first of his two late offerings at the Belasco Theater.

Not content with placing his "Beautiful People" in a smoky, badly lighted basement restaurant, he introduced one who entered and announced quite blandly that the world outside was no longer there. It had disappeared. For a few minutes while the air was filled with Saroyan's maunderings, the idea seemed revolutionary. Such a line of approach, carefully followed by all the nature-fearing playwrights, would demand that all theatergoers must accept the ruling that he stay within the playwright's limited space.

So the theatergoers stayed outside and Saroyan had to close his shows after a few meagrely attended performances. Now, he announces he is writing a new play called "The Life of William Saroyan" and already has started casting by saying that Victor Mature will play the leading role, that of himself. The play? Well, that will be written, perhaps, during rehearsals.

VICTORY FIREWORKS, AERIAL CIRCUS AT CONEY ISLAND

Pyrotechnical likenesses of General Douglas MacArthur, the American flag and other patriotic figures and objects will be featured in the Victory Fireworks show at Coney Island, Cincinnati, every night, Aug. 28 through Labor Day, Sept. 7. An Aerial Circus, featuring daredevil trapeze artists in death-defying routines, also will be a free attraction twice daily during this period — at 4 and 9 p. m.

The Three Milos are one of the headliners in the Aerial Circus. Two girls and a man make up the trio. They perform dangerously atop a 125-foot high rigging, without the use of nets or other safety devices. The act reaches a sensational climax when their perch seems to break during a particularly tense moment in their performance, threatening to send them hurtling to the ground.

Another thriller is the Great Fussner, described as "the world's foremost exponent of unsupported balancing." Several other thrilling acts also are on this free program.

Coney Island's season will reach its climax and close on Labor Day, when a particularly elaborate entertainment is planned.

Jack Teagarden and His Orchestra will be the attraction in Moonlite Gardens, Coney's beautiful summer ballroom. Other highlights of the Coney program are the boatride on the Island Queen; the swimming pool, dining at the Clubhouse, the United Nations War Show, many rides and fun devices, and a thousand free picnic tables.

ADMINISTRATION PLANS ARE MADE FOR NEW TERM

Message Sent To Parents;
Idea of Cooperation Is Outlined in Detail

In order to better acquaint the parents of Fayette County school pupils with the administrative problems and details, Supt. W. J. Hilty has sent a personal message to each as time for the opening of schools draws near.

Supt. Hilty's message:

"Soon hundreds of Fayette County boys and girls will again answer the call of a new school-year. Some will enter for the first time—a great adventure for those so young in years. To many more this experience will not be new. Many are eagerly awaiting the time for school to start and some may depend upon you and their elders for encouragement, guidance and inspiration. There is scarcely a boy or a girl who does not at some time or other question the practical worth of going to school—often including those of superior intelligence and capacity for learning. Therein lies your challenge. A timely and friendly word of encouragement from you as a parent now may be priceless. The testimonies of countless boys and girls—now men and women—verify that truth. I know that parents will want to guard against shortsightedness and hasty action as it relates to boys and girls of school age (6-18 years) during the current days of uncertainty. Opportunities of one kind or another for youth are knocking loudly everywhere. May we distinguish clearly between the genuine and the false, the immediate and the remote. As parents, let us fix our vision steadfastly on the greater opportunities which lie ahead for the boys and girls who will not allow their schooling to be interrupted by other less promising employment.

"With best wishes for a pleasant and profitable school year as it relates to your family."

Meanwhile, the men and women who help fashion the plans for the schools, the boards of education, were ready to start another year.

The boards and members in Fayette County:

PHYSICAL FITNESS WILL BE STRESSED

More Physical Education To Be Students' Requirement

War conditions are beginning to cause Ohio educational institutions to direct attention to better balanced physical education programs as a part of their curricula.

Fayette County boys attending Ohio State University, Columbus, will be required to take four years of physical education instead of one, starting this fall, because the war period has caused the university to place additional emphasis on physical fitness.

In view of what the Fayette County Selective Service Board, and other such boards in Ohio, have discovered in examinations as to the rather surprisingly large number of otherwise eligible young men who fail to show physical fitness, the move started by this institution probably will meet with quite general approval.

Washington High School and other high schools of the state are expected to gradually place some emphasis on balanced physical training in future.

Where in the past only freshmen have been required to take physical education at Ohio State, the new program calls for such training three days a week for members of all classes—undergraduate, graduate and professional.

According to Vice President Harvey H. Davis of Ohio State, expansion of the physical education program is intended to help students achieve maximum physical efficiency—whether for military service or for civilian work.

Some exemptions will be granted, and a special board is being set up to pass upon these cases. Some students will be excused because of physical handicaps, perhaps others because of schedule difficulties. And it's quite likely that a student working his way through school by heavy manual labor will be excused, after his freshman year.

In the new program emphasis will be placed on active, competitive sports, as distinguished from the "recreational." Such sports as golf, badminton, archery won't meet the requirements under the new plan.

Miscellaneous Shower-Party Fetes Miss LaVonne Jordan, Bride-Elect of September 6

Miss Mary Jane Hyer, Miss Marjorie Swartz and Miss Rosemary Swartz combined charming hospitality Thursday evening when they entertained with a miscellaneous shower for Miss LaVonne Jordan, bride-elect of September 6, at the home of Miss Hyer.

The guests were entertained with exciting and clever contests, with Miss Helen Davidson and Mrs. Florence Andrews, winners, who presented their awards to Miss Jordan.

They were then invited to the dining room where the table was quite a lovely picture. Covered with a lace cloth and centered with summer blooms, tall white lighted tapers were on either end of the table. The buffet was especially beautiful with an antique bowl of pale tinted snap dragons. The table was banked with many lovely gifts for which the guest of honor expressed sweet appreciation and thanks, as she opened each.

For the occasion Miss Jordan was smartly dressed in a fall costume of black crepe, with lace trim and a costume corsage of shell pink roses. The pretty young girls were becomingly dressed in summer and fall costumes, and made a colorful background for so lovely a party.

A most appetizing sandwich course was served to Miss Phyllis Pittinger, Miss Davidson, Miss Laura Schadel, Miss Beatrice Taylor, Miss Mary Jo Renick, Mrs. John G. Jordan, Miss Mary Bellar, Mrs. Andrews and Miss Jordan. Miss Sara Lyons, Mrs. Edwin Swartz, Miss Elizabeth Godfrey, and Miss Lorie Merritt sent gifts and their sincere regrets in not being able to attend.

The young hostesses were assisted by their mothers, Mrs. Chan Hyer and Mrs. Esta Swartz.

Informal Dance At Country Club Saturday Night

An impromptu but much welcomed affair has been announced for Saturday evening, August 29, at the Washington Country Club, when another informal dance is to take place.

This will be the fourth in the series of these affairs for which "Juke Box" furnishes the very latest of records, with selections from the Hit Parade on the list.

Mr. Wert Shoop has taken complete charge of the arrangements for the dance, and will capably carry out each detail, since the entire committee with the exception of one couple, have left this community, having enlisted in the U. S. Army in various corps.

So popular were these dances, the demand and urge for one becoming so enthusiastic, that Chairman Shoop announced Friday "the club would be open Saturday evening for members and their invited guests, with a minimum charge made to cover expenses."

First Song Is Published By Washington C. H. Pair

That first dent in the musical world—the world from which spring the tunes of today—has been made by a pair of youthful song writers in Washington C. H.

For Hal Summers who writes the lyrics, and Katie Biehn, who writes the music, have had their first song published.

The title of the song is, "It's the Navy," and, as the name implies, tends toward the patriotic. Hal's father, W. E. Summers, who operates the Summers Music Store here, gave the two a helping hand in publishing the song, which was printed by the Zimmerman Co in Cincinnati.

Young Summers and Miss Biehn have just completed their second song "Two Thousand Miles from Home," but they do not know whether they will publish it or not. They may try to sell it to a publisher instead, they indicated.

Their first song is on sale now in Washington C. H., Columbus, Portsmouth, Athens, Chillicothe and Jackson.

Miss Biehn, who was graduated from the Washington C. H. High School, is a student at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. Summers, who is 15 years old, will be a sophomore at the high school here this fall.

Baseball Offers War Benefit in World Series

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(P)—Baseball's offer to share $357,544 to $679,006 of its world series kitty was extended today to two organizations—the USO and the Red Cross—and needed only their formal acceptance and subsequent approval by government authorities to go into effect this fall.

K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, said that to his knowledge the world series never before has been conducted as a benefit.

After conferring yesterday with Presidents Will Harridge of the American League and Ford Frick of the National League, Landis revealed the plan.

Landis drew up 1942 series estimates based on last fall's classic between the New York

Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, which teams appear headed for an encore meeting this year, and came up with these statistics:

The $100,000 for radio rights, previously shared by players and "baseball" would be turned over to the USO and Red Cross. The $160,731 gate receipts from each of the first two games would go into the players' pool and $78,748 to baseball.

The $262,800 receipts from games 3 and 4 in the larger Yankee Stadium, approximately $128,722 would go each day into the USO-Red Cross pool and $134,028 into the players' kitty, "baseball" getting nothing.

If the series ended in four games, the two organizations would net $357,544, the players would divide $432,000 and baseball would get a mere $157,496.

If the series should end in five games, all receipts from the fifth contest—at Yankee Stadium and amounting again to $262,800—would go to baseball, boosting its total to $420,296.

Receipts of games 6 and 7, in the National League park, would go entirely to the service groups and the final reckoning might be: USO-Red Cross $679,006; players' share $432,000; baseball's share $420,296.

Rowdies Swamp Cats In Girls Game and Legion Beats Grange

In a wild and woolly girls' softball game Thursday night at Wilson Field, the Albers Cats softball team was swamped by Rife's Rowdies under a score of 35 to 2.

The Rife girls, first batters in the game, went on a hitting and scoring spree in the first inning, sending 10 runs across. In the second inning the Alber team held them down some and they scored only two. In the third inning of the five inning ball game, 17 of the Rowdies had their chance at the plate and 13 made a complete trip.

In the last half of the third Reser of the Cats got on base and finally came home on a hit by Florence Cook. That was the first run for the Cats and also their first hit. In the fourth inning for the Rowdies another six came across the plate to make the count 31 to 1. In the last of the fourth Knapp of the Cats got the second and last hit of the game and scored. In the fifth inning, the last inning of play, the Rowdies sent 4 more runs home. The heavy hitters of the game were Adams, Allen and Brown of the Rowdies with three for five.

Legion Team Wins

In the second game of the evening, the American Legion defeated the Forest Shade Grange by a score of 14 to 3.

Three runs were scored by the Legionnaires in the first inning and three more in the third. In the fourth they sent one run in. The Grangers scored their runs in three innings. They got one in the third, one in the fourth and one in the fifth. The Legion kept scoring and barging on ahead. They scored five more runs in the sixth and 2 in the seventh.

The hitters of the second game were Butterfield of the Legion with three for four, a double, a triple and a home run, Anderson of the Grange with two for two and Hoppes of the Grange with two for three.

Harness Horse Hoofbeats

By BOB KENEFICK

Bill Strang of Brooklyn and Thomas Thomas of Cleveland won about $30,000 and $11,000 respectively the last week. Strang got his winnings through The Ambassador, His Excellency and Volo Song in Ben White's stable while Thomas collected his do-re-mi from Scotland's Comet and Adios in Rupe Parker's barn. . . . Fourteen-year-old Charles Blakesley of New Haven, Conn. asked Ben White for the whip he used when the Ambassador won the Hambletonian and Ben gave it to the youngster. . . . Gib White, son of Ben, asked his dad to use the same sulky that Rosalind tugged in 1936 and it was in that bike that Ben drove the Ambassador to the victory. . . . Strang tried to win the Hambletonian four times before he succeeded. His trotters which failed were Twilight Song, Queen Victoria, The Abbot and His Excellency. . . . The latter failed by only a nose last year to Bill Gallon. . . . Ben White got a check for $5,000 from Strang for winning the Hambletonian while Lee Smith got fired by R. Horace Johnston of Charlotte, N. C. for failing to win the feature when everybody seemed to think Lee did well with skinny Pay Up to get second money of approximately $7,500. . . . Johnston took Bill Gallon and Helen Gallon away from Smith.

Claude Swafford, a colored gent from Lexington, Ky., broke the four yearling trotters which finished one, two, three, four in the two-year-old trot at Goshen. . . . They were Volo Song, Worthy Boy, Gordon Gray and Nedwin. . . . Sep Palin was set down for ten days for failure to obey instructions from starter Baker at Goshen. . . . This deprived him of the opportunity of driving Purdue Hal and Worthy Boy at Saratoga in big stakes. . . . Many of the drivers, including Tommy Berry, Fred Egan and Daryl Parrshall, passed up the Saratoga meet shipping their horses to Milwaukee to rest up a week. . . . Harry Craig shipped the Good Time stable from Goshen to Westburg for several weeks of racing before shipping to Reading, Pa. . . . Ben White was fined $100 by the officials at Saratoga for not extending Volo Song in the second heat of The Horseman Stake when he was left at the post. . . . Ben was burned up because starter Hopkins told him and all the other drivers to go up the stretch and while Ben was obeying orders the record was started and the horses were on their way while Volo Song was heading up the track. . . . Horsemen all over the East are planning to attend the Lexington Tots the last day of September and the first week of October. . . . The field there will be the best of the year undoubtedly. . . . The mutual handle at Roosevelt Raceway is getting better every day. . . . Many horses shipped to Roosevelt from Saratoga when the Spa track closed tonight. . . . Also many went to Ohio where they will perform at a string of fairs. . . . Ben White and Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons had a long chat at the Saratoga running track when they were introduced by Bill Strang. . . . Little Pat now holds the track record at the Saratoga Raceway with a mile in 2:02½ set on August 15 while pacing against Hot Feet, a wiggler well named. . . . Races will be held at Athens, Ohio, Wellington, Ohio, Hicksville, Ohio, Mansfield, Ohio, Painesville, Ohio and Tiffin, Ohio the week of August 24. . . . The Randolph County Fair at Sparta, Ill., the week of September 22 has been cancelled.

Red Birds Back in Lead Of Mad Scramble in AA

(By the Associated Press)

The Columbus Red Birds held a scant lead of three percentage points in the red hot American Association pennant chase today, and over-night became the favorite among five teams battling down the stretch for the league bunting.

The Red Birds sneaked into first place last night with a 15-inning, 4 to 1 victory over Indianapolis in the latter city. And, although they were less than half a game in front of the Milwaukee Brewers today, they were placed in the favorite role because 10 of their remaining 14 games will be played at home.

The Birds open their home stay tonight against the Louisville Colonels who are in fourth place, three and a half games off the pace. Louisville edged Toledo, 4 to 3, last night.

St. Paul assumed the giant-killer role for the second straight night by walloping Milwaukee 16 to 2.

Kansas City's Blues, only .005 percentage points back of Milwaukee and .008 behind the Red Birds, bounced back into the pennant fight with a 7 to 4 triumph over Minneapolis.

Mathematically, every club in the league but last place St. Paul, still has a chance to capture the pennant taken last year by Columbus, which went on to win the Little World Series.

Grand American Up for Decision On Longer Route

By FRITZ HOWELL

VANDALIA, Aug. 28.—(P)—They'll decide the $10,000 Grand American Handicap today—and indications were that an unknown as in the past 42 years, would cop the clay target game's biggest prize.

Although 185 of the big field of 935 shooting stars failed to get a crack at the targets yesterday, due to a late start, the performances of the others hinted that the experts were no better off than before a schedule change was made in their favor.

The route was changed this year from 100 to 200 targets. The Amateur Trapshooting Association held that the increase might help the experts who are placed far back of the traps, giving them a chance against novices nearer the traps.

Alabama Footballer Is Injured In Crash

EAST LIVERPOOL, Aug. 28.—(P)—Mitchell Olenki, 220-pound University of Alabama football player, is in City Hospital here with a fracture of his left leg. The tackle, whose home is in Jersey City, N. J., was injured when the car in which he was riding swerved to avoid striking another machine. His three companions, en route with him to the Chicago Bear-College All-Stars football game at Chicago Friday night, were uninjured.

Pennant Contenders In Each League are Set Back by Losses

By JUDSON BAILEY

(By the Associated Press)

The World Series is beginning to look safe again for the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees.

What little excitement has been breathed into the two major league pennant races in recent days apparently was expelled yesterday as the Brooklyn Dodgers bounced out of their lethargy and quelled the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1 and the onrush of the Boston Red Sox was checked by the Cleveland Indians 4-2.

The Dodgers' victory yesterday—their first in four starts against the Cards—sent the Brooks into the last month of the season with a 5½ game lead.

The Cardinals pitched Max Lanier last night, two days after he had held Brooklyn to four hits Monday night. The stocky southpaw wasn't up to the job, however, and was shelled for five successive singles and three runs in the fourth. Then another left-hander, Ernie White, came in and was pelted for an additional single and Brooklyn's final run.

The veteran Curt Davis, once a Cardinal, hurled the Dodger revival. He held the Redbirds to eight scattered hits and knocked in two of Brooklyn's runs with a single.

The Red Sox' string of nine consecutive victories not only was broken in the only American League game, but Cecil (Tex) Hughson's skein of 11 straight pitching triumphs also was snapped as Jim Bagby of the Indians hurled a five-hitter.

A better pitching battle than this, though, was given a small gathering of fans at Cincinnati where the New York Giants beat the Reds 2-0 by bunting five hits in the 11th inning after Harry Feldman and Ray Starr had labored through ten scoreless innings.

Hank Gornicki provided a one-lin military spokesman's boast that "the fate of Stalingrad will be decided this week." German field headquarters gave only this account of the battle: "Southwest of Stalingrad, the German offensive is gaining ground against stubborn enemy resistance." Soviet dispatches said the Germans had turned the fury of their aerial assaults on residential sections in the heart of Stalingrad, dropping hundreds of fire bombs to set many homes aflame. The Nazi command said German troops had forced their way across several more mountain passes in the Caucasus and "annihilated" Soviet defenders barring their path. The communique asserted also that the Red armies' offensive on the Moscow front near Rzhev was "smashed up in several places in cooperation with the Luftwaffe." In London, British military quarters said the situation was "considerably improved," but that the prospect of a "big strategic victory" for the Russians was not yet in sight. The Russians said the battle for Stalingrad was mounting in violence at the close of the second month of Gen. von Bock's all-out offensive, and the government declared: "The Hitlerites bring into action huge fresh tank and infantry forces."

OHIO PENITENTIARY HAS GOOD SOLDIERS

So Says Warden on Basis of Summer's Training COLUMBUS, Aug. 28.—(P)—Warden Frank Henderson of Ohio Penitentiary feels he has 450-500 men he could recommend as soldiers in the army. This belief was based on a summer of drilling by prisoners who were given basic military training under the guidance of Henderson, former head of the Ohio National Guard. A number of technicalities would have to be ironed out before the men could enter the army, however. The army now admits only first offenders. Henderson has some second and third offenders he believes would make good men for the fighting forces.

OHIO CLAMPS DOWN ON LIQUOR PERMITS

No New Ones To Be Issued But Old May Be Renewed COLUMBUS, Aug. 28.—(P)—Ohio's collective thirst for alcoholic beverages must be slaked until war's end by the state's present crop of 17,000 retail outlets. The State Liquor Board, as a wartime emergency measure, yesterday "froze" the issuance of new liquor, beer and wine permits. "The Liquor Board felt that in view of the war 17,000 retail liquor outlets are enough," said Board Chairman Harry E. Hawley. "Some of them have been causing us a lot of trouble, so we thought it best that no additional ones be issued." Permit renewals will not be affected.

Ship Sinkings

(By the Associated Press) Badly crippled in a collision with another vessel far out in the foggy Atlantic, a small British merchantman was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine as it wallowed helplessly a day after the accident. The Navy announced the sinking last night after five survivors of the crew of 41 reached a New England port, half-delirious from 15 days of hunger and thirst. The destruction of the British vessel—which went down three minutes after the torpedo struck early this month—together with that of two other merchantmen disclosed yesterday, brought to 445 The Associated Press tabulation of announced wartime Allied and neutral merchant losses in the Western Atlantic. The other newly-disclosed victims were a medium-sized U. S. cargo carrier and a medium-sized Greek ship. Both were sunk early this month.

Many Airplane Mechanics Now Get Training Here

COURSE IS OPEN TO ENROLLMENT AT ANY TIME

Night School Trainees All Get Jobs at $1500 a Year Plus Opportunity

There is a sizeable group of men here who are not satisfied to let the men in uniform carry the whole burden of this war even if they are not qualified for active service with the country's armed forces.

If they can't carry a gun, they can at least help make the things the soldiers and sailors and airmen need. They may not know anything about machinery or airplanes, but that's not stopping them. They're doing something about it.

Night after night, from before sunset until after dawn, they study the fundamentals and theories and put them into practice under the watchful eyes of their instructors. Then, after a few hours sleep, most of them start in on their regular daytime jobs.

With the help of the federal government, three airplanes were brought into what was the gymnasium, before the high school building was remodeled and enlarged.

Here these ambitious and patriotic men are learning a trade that not only will help them take part in the country's war effort but will provide them with a means for making a living after the war is won.

The course in aviation mechanics was inaugurated for adults in the night school last January in the wartime tempo, although the high school has offered this training for the past two years under the supervision of Warren M. Root.

It covers a 12-week period for five nights a week. Two classes are held each night. One comes in at 6 P. M. and leaves at midnight; the other comes in at midnight and leaves at 6 A. M.

It is not easy to tell exactly how many are taking the course now or how many have taken it because, Root explained, "it is conducted on the continuous enrollment plan."

Explaining further, he said, men could enter the class any time—and that is what they are doing—and pick up the training at the start because each gets what amounts to individual attention. He took the schedule laid out for one evening and demonstrated step by step.

A huge army transport plane completely filled the old gymnasium with the tail in one corner and the nose in the opposite one on the other side. A smaller pursuit plane was tucked in at one side partly under the spreading tail rudder of the transport. Another small plane, which had been taken apart, was laid out on the floor at one side under the wings of the transport. Crates with plane parts were pushed back against the wall wherever there was space. Some even were outside. The planes all came from the Army Air Corps and had been in service before they were sent here from Wright Field.

In a room built off the front end of the old gymnasium, the tools were kept in neat arrangement. There, too, were the parts. On the floor were parts of the big radial engines. These are put together by the "pupils" and then taken apart, over and over again, until the intricate mechanism is thoroughly understood, Root explained.

A group of men was working industriously over the engine parts. Another group was climbing over the mammoth plane. Some were inside the fuselage noting construction. Some were studying the wings and others the nose construction. Still others were working back on the tail. From one group to another, went Root. Each group was in a different stage of training.

It was along toward night and the class work had been finished. The engine had been assembled and hoisted laboriously, high up to the nose of the transport and bolted in with the numerous fittings, painstakingly made.

Root called the class together. One of the advanced trainees climbed into the cockpit and the instructor stood on a ladder outside at his elbow. There was a loud mechanical singing and then—with a deafening roar, the engine started, churning a cyclone to the rear. Blue-gray smoke filled the room. The trainees stood back, braced against the backwash of the propellers, and watched. They couldn't make themselves heard above the roar of the engine but they made signs and their faces were bright with the feeling of accomplishment. As the big plane strained against the

NEW CHAIN LETTER IS IN CIRCULATION

A new type of "chain letter" is now in circulation. Post Office officials here revealed today.

The letter is entitled "Good Luck of London," and was supposedly started by an American soldier, and been around the world four times, the letter states. It asks the recipient to copy the letter and send the copies to four people whom they wish good luck and that after four days good luck will come to those who comply with this request. It states further that whoever breaks this chain will have bad luck.

This letter clearly implies a threat, and for that reason is unlawful, authorities here said, and any person receiving such a letter is requested by the postal authorities to turn it over to them at once.

Wheel blocks and brakes, their expressions showed that they realized they were making progress in their training and soon would be putting real airplanes together or repairing them.

Superintendent A. B. Murray and Principal W. F. Rettig of the high school watched as another group drew near the end of the course.

When the engines were cut off and the strange silence settled over the room, Root told the superintendent and principal there was room for more in the classes now and that he was anxious for men—and women, too—to come in and start the course.

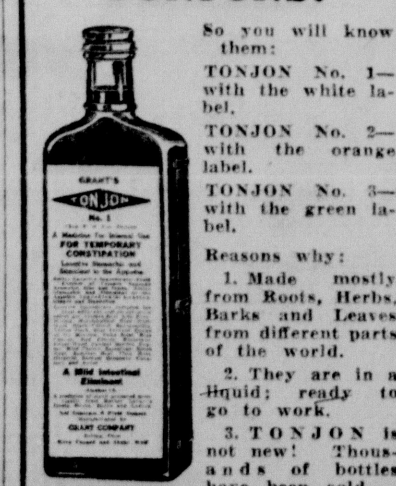

Trained airplane mechanics are badly needed, he told them and the records of the courses offered here bore him out. They showed that every one of the "graduates" who had applied at Patterson Field had been given jobs at $1,500 and up at the start. Some, he said, had been accepted even before they finished their training.

The course is open to any adult. Many of those who have taken it, attended the classes at night and kept right on with their regular daytime jobs, he said. Private training, such as that offered here with the government cooperation, Root said, would cost upwards of $300. This course is free.

High school juniors and seniors can take the training.

A new phase of airplane work is in prospect for the near future in connection with the airplane mechanics course, Supt. Murray revealed. It will take in sheet metal riveting. New equipment is on the way now, he said, adding that there is a scarcity of workers in this field. It, too, will be open to both men and women.

QUESTIONNAIRES TO BE SENT TO REGISTRANTS

Selective Service Board To Start Mailing Saturday; Assistance Planned

Occupational questionnaires will be mailed starting Saturday to all registrants of the fifth group who were registered June 30, 1942, in Fayette County, under the Selective Service Act.

The questionnaire, (DSS Form 311), are to be completed and returned to the Selective Service Board here within the prescribed time set forth in the report.

Other registrants of this group will be mailed the Selective Service questionnaire (DSS Form 40) in addition to the occupational questionnaire as they reach the age of 20 years, J. M. Willis, board chairman, said.

In Fayette County, there were 411 registrants in the 18-20 year group, of which 107 have now reached the age of 20.

The Selective Service Advisory Board, composed of Norman McLean, W. L. O'Brien and Robert Meriweather, and their appointed associate members, have arranged to assist all registrants in completing questionnaires.

Each registrant appearing for assistance, the board declared, should know the date of his birth, his weight, height and social security number.

The following places will be open from 8:30 A. M. to 4 P. M. each day except Saturday afternoon and Sunday in order that associate members can assist registrants:

Leonard Korn, The First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 134 East Court Street.

J. P. Strevey, The Civic Loan Company, 142 East Court Street.

Fred Carlson, Columbus Production Credit Association, 107 1-2 East Court Street.

Frank Brown, W. L. O'Brien, The Midland Grocery Company, 153 South Main Street.

Meanwhile, in Washington, D. C., new draft legislation to make 18 and 19 year old youths eligible for armed service topped a program mapped out for the waning months of the 77th Congress by Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) of the House Rules Committee.

"In all likelihood," Sabath said in an interview, "Congress will be asked this session to permit the drafting of 18 and 19 year olds and will give its approval."

In his opinion, he added, the 18-19 group contains "the finest fighting material available."

40 MPH SPEED LAW IS ENFORCED HERE

City Officials in Line with Tire Conservation Plan

Although there has been no announced "drive" against speeders, Washington C. H. police gave indication today that the request from state and federal officials that the 40-mile-an-hour limit be enforced as a tire conservation measure would be given more than passing attention.

It has been months since speed patrols were maintained in Washington C. H.; but, apparently, the tire situation has focused the spotlight on traffic again. City officials, however, offered no direct comment.

Karl Wagner, driving a 1940 Ford sedan, was picked up by officers Ingersoll and Harris about 5:30 P. M. Thursday. They charged him with driving 55 miles an hour. He forfeited his $10 bond.

Drivers found guilty of exceeding the wartime speed limit are to be denied new tires or retreads even if they are eligible.
